

CTP 3005

LOOK ONCE LOOK AGAIN

IN THE

MEADOW

by David M. Schwartz photographs by Dwight Kuhn

LOOK ONCE LOOK AGAIN

SCIENCE SERIES

Creative Teaching Press

LOOK ONCE

This flower brightens up meadows in summer.
Some people think it has a black eye.

LOOK AGAIN

The black-eyed Susan's dark center is brown, not black. It looks like a bull's-eye so insects can find it. They eat the flower's sweet-smelling nectar.

This flower is also called "brown-eyed Susan," "brown Betty," and "yellow daisy."

LOOK ONCE

You have two eyes and two legs. This creature has eight eyes and eight legs!

