Growing Up in the White House

Imagine your mom or dad is elected president of the United States. That makes you First Kid. Overnight, you're famous. And you're about to move into the White House!

The White House has 132 rooms (not counting secret passageways). The First Family lives in eight rooms on the second and third floors.

Lots of people visit the White House. Even famous people. First Kids get to meet their favorite sports and movie stars. At state dinners you might be able to say, "Please pass the salt, Your Highness."

Bored? The White House has a movie theater, swimming pool, and bowling alley.

Tired of waiting for the school bus? First Kids travel by limousine and private jet.

Can you guess the one thing First Kids don't have? Privacy. For safety, Secret Service agents follow them everywhere. They even have secret code names.

If you're shy, you might not like being First Kid. The whole world is watching you grow up. Your picture is in newspapers and on TV. Strangers know your shoe size!

Almost 200 children have lived in the White House. Some First Kids loved it. Others couldn't wait to leave. Would you like to live there? Read about some First Kids. Then decide for yourself.
